

YOU SAID

“There is not opportunity for group work in our sessions”

“The tutor does not always respond to my views or those of others”

“I did not always receive feedback on my work and my progress during the course”

“I did not always receive good advice and guidance before and during my course”

WE DID...

All courses have been changed and now have more group and teamworking activities within them.

These are designed to encourage working in groups and to help you understand the core principles of your course.

We have held a number of focus groups to understand your views and to address the issues which you raised. We have made changes to the way our programmes are delivered, as well as how we work with you before & after your course.

The way in which we plan and go about our working days has changed, to allow teachers time to provide daily feedback on your work. Teachers now assess your learning in your sessions and provide instant feedback on your work.

Our recruitment and induction teams are now trained to provide you impartial Information, Advice and guidance, ensuring that you start on the correct course to meet your current level of learning and your career aspirations.
